Re: Interconnection Agreements

Dear Ms. Bayo:

Section 252(a) of the Telecommunications Act of 1996 (the "Act") requires interconnection agreements (including those negotiated before the date of enactment of the Act) between incumbent local exchange telecommunications carriers and other carriers to be submitted to the appropriate state commission. Consequently, AT&T Communications of the Southern States, Inc. ("AT&T"), hereby requests that the Florida Public Service Commission (the "Commission") require the filings, within one week, of all existing interconnection agreements between local exchange telecommunications companies [as defined by Section 364.02(6), Florida Statutes] certificated by the Commission and other carriers (including other local exchange telecommunications carriers, alternative local exchange telecommunications companies, and alternative access vendors) in accordance with Section 252(a) of the Act.

AT&T further respectfully requests that copies of such agreements be served on AT&T at the time that they are filed, so that AT&T can participate in the review of such agreements pursuant to Section 252(e) of the Act. AT&T's participation will not only aid the Commission's review of the agreements, as required, but will also enable AT&T to protect its own interests since AT&T may need to obtain interconnection services under such agreements pursuant to Section 252(i) of the Act, prior to obtaining an interconnection agreement of its own.
