Re: Amended Letter Concerning the Merger of Logix Communications Corporation and American Telco, Inc.

Dear Ms. Bayo:

On November 6, 1998, we sent you a letter advising you of the September 29, 1998 merger of Logix Communications Corporation and American Telco, Inc. Under the plan approved by the Board of Directors of Dobson Wireline Company, the two wholly owned subsidiaries merged and Logix Communications Corporation is the surviving entity. It should be clearly noted that this transaction will not result in a change of control or ownership of either of the entities because Dobson Wireline Company, prior to this transaction, had already owned 100% of all of the outstanding classes of stocks in both companies.

Currently, both Logix Communications Corporation and American Telco, Inc. are authorized to provide resold toll services in your state. The combined company will operate under the logo and brand name of Logix Communications Corporation and will utilize the Logix price list or tariffs, where applicable. Additionally, all of our customers have received written notice advising them of the merger and subsequent changes. Further, no customer's rates will be increased as a result of the merger, and in most cases, the customer's rates will decrease.
