Comments : I have been thinking of going solar but after the hurricanes I was told you can't use them unless FPL goes back on the grid (is turned on) and this was approved by your team? I can't even get a larger solar unit and be removed from the grid entirely? Insane! This is America, right? New Idea's should proper and independent solar household should be able to move off the grid without a corporate company telling us what to do. When you have a generator hook-up with a transfer switch that's legal so why not attachment regulation like that to solar panels? You should treat the sunshine state citizen with more respect. Sad the way the system seems to a degree, to represents everyone but the taxpayer at times. Do you recommend me getting a solar grid for my house? I'm so excited about doing just that but your regulation has stop me dead in my tracks. How useful would it be during a hurricane or even an internet electrical grid attack from another country? Please help your fellow Floridians and thank you, j.
