Dear Florida Public Service Commission,
Thank you for your service on the FPSC.

I know that you each work diligently in the public interest and seek to balance competing interests.

I am writing to urge you to continue your support for net metering.

I believe that the long-term increase in resilience that a distributed solar system provides is worthy of your continued support. Net metering is a critical component to make this affordable for home owners like me.

This should complement and not replace the utility scale power generation we have from FP&L. This partnership between homeowners and FP&L is the right thing for my community and for Florida.

With a warming earth increasing the power of storms, an increase in decentralization of power generation is one way to increase our ability to adapt to a changing environment. My partial independence from the grid will help my family and those of my neighbors here in Coral Gables in the event of a prolonged outage such as the one we experienced with Hurricane Andrew. 23 days without power. I don't want to repeat that again.

Thank you for your support.

Sincerely,
Richard Bookman
