If you would replace faulty WATER meters that read lower than the actual useage, You wouldn't have to raise water rates. I had mine replaced several years ago. My neighbors back then were complaining about their high bills. I was ^{irrigating} irrigating as much as they were & The number of people in my household was close to theirs. If my meter was faulty I'm sure there are many more that have gone bad. If people live in their homes year round and have a significantly lower water bill than their neighbors, then there is probably an issue with their meter.
