With regards to the above mentioned Docket, reference is made, with regards of the attempt of Environmental Utilities to establish a sewer system on our Island.

We strongly oppose this idea.

What evidence exactly exists to support there is a problem. Has testing been done? The last time this came up I recall PIE conducting a series of water quality tests and the water was fine.

The financial aspects of all this seems scary. What I am seeing are proposed rates that our of the norm and the install costs are also high. There will be considerable life style changes, some may have to sell.

What back ground does the builder have. Talking about history you may want look at some of the past events where the straight and narrow was not taken.

Finally I think this a reasonable question;

With the assumption the builder is doing this to make a profit,

The question is, if the proposed builder had not started this, would have the county started this?

Also, if this all fails in the future, who cleans up the mess.
