Dear Commissioner

Florida has approximately 5 million people 65 and over who live on a fixed income. Most of these are barely above the poverty level. Adding a $13.64 monthly increase to these peoples household expense in unconscionable. This action could mean that some people may have to choose between, paying their electric bill, buy food, and paying for medications. This may actually increase the use of assistance programs many of which are paid for with taxpayer money.

This needs to be rethought through.

Thank you,

Gary Barclay
