ORDER APPROVING TARIFF

BY THE COMMISSION:

On February 7, 1992, AT&T Communications of the Southern States, Inc. (ATT-C) filed a proposed tariff to introduce AT&T Optimum Service. AT&T Optimum Service is an outbound, access independent calling plan; the end user can use either local exchange access or special access. The plan allows subscribers to place outbound calls from single or multiple locations. AT&T Optimum Service subscribers with multiple locations have the option of choosing whether to have the location served by local exchange access or special access. The service has differing usage rate schedules for local exchange access or special access. Depending upon the calling volume of a location, customers can choose the type of access provisioning which is most economical to the customer per location. The customer will receive a single monthly bill for all locations billed to the same main billed account.

The service also includes a calling card service. The Optimum Calling Card will allow customers to take advantage of the AT&T Optimum Service rates when they are away from their locations. The usage rates for the calling card will be the same as the rates for AT&T Optimum Service using local exchange access, plus an $0.80 surcharge per call.

AT&T Optimum Service includes a volume discount plan which will apply to total usage charges billed to the main billed account for international, interstate and intrastate direct dial station calls and customer dialed Optimum Calling Card calls.

AT&T-C intends to market AT&T Optimum Service to customers having monthly bills as low as $500 to larger national firms with billing totaling $30,000. The Company expects nine customers during the first year with expected revenues of $461,000. Based on
